Wildfire Activity Georgia

- A widespread, exceptional drought has set the stage for a surge of wildfires across Georgia, with more than 90 fires igniting this week alone.
- Governor Brian P. Kemp has declared a state of emergency across 91 Georgia counties due to ongoing wildfires in the southern portion of the state, with a burn ban to remain in effect for 30 days, unless otherwise renewed.
- The Pineland Road and Brantley County fires have both grown substantially as dry winds continue to challenge firefighters, leaving containment heavily limited on both fronts.
- Brantley County Manager Joey Cason tells FOX Weather that 5,000 acres have now burned with the fire 10% contained. The fire spread from 700 acres on Tuesday at 11am to 5,000 acres on Wednesday.
- 47 homes/dwellings have been destroyed so far.
- Around 120 people have been evacuated, and depending on wind conditions on Thursday, that number may increase.
- According to the Georgia Forestry Commission, the Pineland Rd. Fire that began on private timberland on April 18 is still burning in Clinch and Echols counties, has now grown to an estimated 16,000 acres and remains 10% contained.
- Gusting winds, the low humidity has also helped ignite areas in the drought-ridden Peach State, with 98.1% of Georgia's land area under moderate to exceptional drought.
- Emergency officials have urged residents near the growing wildfire to evacuate the area, with Georgia Emergency Management Agency Homeland Security issuing mandatory evacuations for vulnerable areas.
