Tropical Storm Melissa

- Jamaica's government issued a Hurricane Watch and a Tropical Storm Warning on Thursday morning.
- The National Hurricane Center (NHC) warned of possible life-threatening flash flooding on the island nation due to heavy rain expected from Melissa.
- FOX Weather Hurricane Specialist Bryan Norcross said Thursday that this could be a catastrophic situation for the Caribbean.
- Forecasters with the NHC said Melissa could become a hurricane by Saturday and intensify into a Category 4 hurricane with 130-mph winds as early as Sunday night.
- The government of Jamaica said Thursday that it activated the country's emergency operation center and emergency generators, medical supplies and fuel are in place ahead of the storm.
- According to the FOX Forecast Center, some places in Jamaica could receive more than 2 feet of rain through next Wednesday.
- Currently located about 270 miles to the southwest of Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and about 150 miles to the southeast of Kingston, Jamaica, according to the latest information from the NHC.
- Melissa has maximum sustained winds of 45 mph with some higher gusts, and was "nearly stationary," according to the NHC Friday morning.
- Slow movement is expected to the north and northeast is expected later Friday then forecasted to move west beginning Saturday, with the center of the storm south of Jamaica as it rapidly intensifies.
