WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

March 26, 2024

Severe Weather Threat

South

- The threat of severe weather will push into southern Alabama and the Florida Panhandle on Tuesday.
- Large hail and some tornadoes are possible within any severe thunderstorms that develop.
- Along with the severe weather threat, flash flooding will also be a concern due to the ground already being saturated and the additional heavy rain that's expected to fall.
- The FOX Forecast Center said rainfall rates of 1-2 inches per hour are possible, leading to a flash flood threat across the South and Southeast until the storm pushes off the East Coast by Wednesday.

Damage Assessments

Ohio

- FEMA is arriving in Ohio on Tuesday, March 26 to start assessing tornado damage with local and state agencies.
- It will be in at least 11 different Ohio counties, at the state's request, that have experienced tornado damage.
- Indian Lake was one of the hardest hit areas by the tornados that hit Ohio on March 14.
- "FEMA will be on the grounds doing their joint preliminary damage assessments, which is really their opportunity to get a first-hand look at what took place, how extensive the damage is, number of impacted residents and kinda get a sense of what the cost might be to do a full recovery," Logan County Public Information Officer Ben Vollrath said.
- Over 300 homes have either been destroyed or have major damage, and another 40-50 businesses have some degree of damage, according to Vollrath.
