WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

June 22, 2022

Severe Weather Outlook

- Following several days of below-normal temperatures and low humidity in the wake of last week's heat, higher temperatures and humidity returned to parts of the interior Northeast and Ohio Valley Tuesday.
- AccuWeather forecasters say that a cold front slicing into the renewed warmth and humidity could lead to volatile thunderstorms Wednesday.
- The resurgence of heat in addition to higher humidity will be just a few of the ingredients that could aid in the development of thunderstorms Wednesday afternoon into early Wednesday night.
- "A moist air mass will be in place across much of the interior Northeast on Wednesday, setting the stage for soaking thunderstorms through the afternoon and evening," said AccuWeather Meteorologist Matt Benz.
- Cincinnati; Morgantown, West Virginia; State College and Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; and Cincinnati are just some locations at moderate risk for severe thunderstorms, according to AccuWeather forecasters.
- Hail and damaging wind gusts will be the main threats, although an isolated tornado is not completely out of the question.
- Even where severe weather does not occur, plenty of moisture will be present. This can lead to very heavy rain in a broader area. To this end, numerous flood watches have been issued from New York to northern Virginia.
